Oh Think Not So.

Oh think not so, because I sing,
That all my song is gay, For hidden clouds within my heart Brood many a weary day;
And memory ever seems to bring The saddest scenes to my sight.

Oh think not so because my smile Seems ever bright, you say, That no fond treasures deep within Are fondly hid away.
For smiles and tears oft closely blend And hope her rainbows seldom lend.

Oh think not so because my heart Seems peaceful, you perceive, That there are no sad yearnings For sympathy and love.
For one to feel my soul's great aim And help from dawn to daylight gain.

Oh think not so, because I bow Submissively when I pray, That I'm not trying, longingly, For a future brighter day.
Till then I try to weave my life As full of smiles, love tears and strife.

Mrs. A. H. ADAMS.
Heaven's Whispers.

Lying upon such a bed as only the starry night ever knew—in such a black, gloomy and ghostly room as the poorest of God's children inhabit, a girl of ten looked out through the cracked and dirty panes at the great waste moon rising up from its bed so far towards eternity that man has never discovered its location.

Was she ten or thirty? One could hardly have known—only the moon—by her rays of the moon—by her own lamp. The fingers were so thin and long that you would have shuddered.
The face was so wan and pale that your thoughts would have been drawn to some distant, dreary, and terrible scene.

She was sitting alone in a room that seemed to her like a great, dark, and lonely place. The moon was shining through the window, and the light was so dim that she could not see anything but the shadow of her own face.

The Great American Basso.

Myron W. Whitney, who is to be one of the singers at the coming San Francisco Festival, was born in Ashby, Mass., Sept. 5, 1836. About the year 1858 he went to Boston, Mass., and shortly after he came to Winters, Cal., where he has been since.

He is a teacher of considerable ability. He remained with this gentleman for some years, constantly studying, and during his stay, he filled the position of leading bass in the then celebrated choir of Tremont Temple, which, under the leadership of Mr. Frost, enjoyed a reputation which was well known throughout the city.

His first appearance before the Handel and Haydn society was at the Christmas concert of 1858. Mr. Whitney sang "Why do the nations so effectively as to win for himself the commendation of the society." At the close of the same time the Handel and Haydn society were presenting such artists as Wetherbee and others in the same role. The writer of this well remembers the glorious manner in which he sang the "Messiah" to-day, but a smooth, fresh-faced boy, rendered this arduous creation of Handel. His position was established from that time, and needed no further proof.

That College.

Suppose ten men in the vicinity of Winters wish to give their children a collegiate education. One of these men sends his son or daughter off to college this year. It costs him at least $300. Three years, and usually more, will be required to complete the education, $900. He has five children, perhaps ten, five times nine are forty-five, $4,500. All this paid out by one man. For ten men it would be the handsome little sum of "Forty-five Thousand Dollars." This would build a college, partially endow it, educate your children, and leave the college and the endowment as a rich legacy for your children and your children's children.

A REACTION.—We once thought all office holders were thieves. We once thought that nobody but political gutter-snipes could obtain an office. We once thought that the whole atmosphere of politics was reeking with the miasma of political corruption, and that when a federal State, County or municipal officer came near you, it would be policy to keep your hands on your pockets. (P. S.—This does not apply to the editor hereof, as his pockets have been depleted till the memory of man runs not to the contrary.) But now, oh, how changed. What a clearing away of the dismal mist. What a glorious radiance of gold like purity now prevades the political atmosphere that surrounds average official. What sanctity and child like innocence. And why this change? You will ask, this answer is ready. "We have been appointed" Deputy District Attorney for Yolo county. "The county is safe and we are happy. "We shall do our duty, remember, without fear or favor" from any one. Hereafter your pockets will be safe. If—that is if you leave your valuables at home.

THAT DOG.—When Jennie spoke caressingly to him and fondly patted him on the neck, visions of first-class steak floated through his mind. But when Jennie remarked "git" at the same time dropping an oyster can on the ground filled with small gravel, and connected to that dog's canine appendage by a stout twine. The vision faded, as did that dog from view. An excited individual who seems to have just him in the neighborhood of Fort Yuma; reported to the scientific society in San Francisco on his return, "that in let. 7, mer. 18, of long. 21, South California, he had passed a new species of which some larger than the old first-class steak dog. Its great peculiarity being the extreme length of its tail, which he said was some 15 feet long, terminating in an oblong globe. It is the opinion of the Government naturalists lately appointed to look after the Colorado beetle, that it is simply a new species of the Kansas grasshopper.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE.—The District Conference for Santa Rosa District, Pacific Annual Conference, M. E. C. S., met at the church in Winters, on Thursday last. Considering the unfavorable state of the roads, quite a large number of preachers and lay delegates were present. Encouraging reports were received from most of the stations and circuits on the district. One new church had been finished, and others were reported in process of erection, besides material improvement in other directions. Altogether the Conference enjoyed a pleasant and profitable session. Tomorrow, at 11 A. M., W. F. Compton, the Presiding Elder, is announced to preach. At 3 P. M. there will be a "children's meeting" addressed by members of the Conference from abroad, and in the evening Rev. C. Chamberlain, of Santa Rosa, will preach on the subject of eternal punishment.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public to the new advertisement of O. P. Fassett the vegetable dealer on the south side of Main street, Winters, he is the only man in town that will sell you good fresh vegetables every day at bed rock prices. Those having due regard for their pocket book and their health, will call on Fassett where they can get pure and fresh vegetables every morning.

Remember we close next Saturday night and with this closing closes this Great Sacrifice of all kinds of goods at Blum's. This is the last chance. Avail yourselves of it before it is too late.

Brevities.

Our merchants are cleaning up the fronts of their places of business. Colds and sore throats prevalent through out the town.

Snow all over the mountains on Monday and Tuesday, 10 miles from town.

Lettuce and cucumbers coming in market.

Three wagon loads of emigrants passed through town Friday, bound for Oregon. John Brown, they say, has the mumps. Look out John!

Father McKee, the editor of this paper proper, is still very sick, hopes, however, are entertained of his recovery.

Plummer & Ward have the contract for moving the Bowen Brothers', barn. Good buys both.

Baird & Davidson's Photograph tent will remain for a few days longer. Those wishing their pictures taken had better call early.

Sam Buchanan failed in the attempt to move Bowen Brothers' barn and gave up the job. The contract is now opened again for bids.

Harling, Levy & Co., have just brought to town one of the finest stocks of general merchandise that we have ever seen brought to this town at one time. Go and see them.

"I want some beef," said the boy as he entered the shop. "Charge it to Jim."

"Want Jim?" asked the butcher. "Why Jim?" said the boy. "Well but what Jim?"

"Now Jim," said the boy, "a butcher that don't know Jim had better sell out to a Chinaman and go into peanuts."

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. J. C. Cadwick's brickyard, it having been reopened for business. He also wishes to inform those desiring mason work to give him a call.

We had the pleasure of a call from Mr. R. B. Kalls, of Kalls county, Mo. Mr. Kalls had just arrived from Kalls Co. and is visiting his friends in and around Winters, and has some idea of looking here. We wish him success.

Kearney says the "Gaius must go." Harling, Levy & Co. say Blum must go out of their store on the first of May, which is only one week more, so don't lose the chance to buy bargains. Remember it is the last week and then the "dog is dead."

John, him william of the Yolo Democrat, now Deputy Assessor and general supernumerary for the Woodland officials, is in town assessing the good people. Why not elect John Assessor, and to a few more offices and be done with it. He seems to do most of the county business away.

Good fellow.

Only one week more to buy Bargains at Blum's.

We hear talk to the effect that some good and true men are talking of withdrawing their patronage from this paper, because we have once been identified with the Republican party. Don't do it go people! We are simply assisting in conducting this paper as a matter of accommodation to a good old gentleman who is sick. As to our politics, we claim they are immensely superior to either the ancient tenets of Republican or Democratic parties. The fact is we are independent and party harness has never been strong enough to compel us to vote for the historical "yellow dog," because our party nominated him. We believe in right, and practice it as near as we know how.

"WHAT is a carnivorous animal?" Professor Miller asked the boy with seven warts on one hand and a sprained thumb on the other. This boy, who stood near the head of the class, when it formed "left in front," and who had played hooky the day before, paused, stood on one foot, looked up at the ceiling, gazed anxiously at the professor, and said in a tone that indicated some doubt on the matter, "A carnivorous animal is one that eats meat grass." Then the school went into a short exercise session, and the professor passed the rattan ball over the boy's report. Several times.

"THE mule," remarked the lively stable man, as they passed the stall where the sleeping animal was leaning up against the partition, dreaming of an Eden wherein there was but one mule and quired the young man, laying his hand on the mule's bustle to be sure that the proper animal was indicated, "This mule the lively man said he kicked, mind the loss of the money (as the young man did not look at) for he could more than make that up on the hearse and carriages as soon as the mule came down; but what he hated about it was having the roof of the stable mused up so where the young man went through.

A WITNESS'S PROMPT-BROUGHT—An Englishman who recently brought suit against a railway corporation for damages caused by an accident on the line, not only went into the witness-box well crammed, but referred to it so often that Sergeant Ballantine took it out of his hands, and himself introduced it in evidence while cross-examining the witness. The book contained a written account of the accident in the form of a letter to the jury, interspersed with remarks, such as "Take it easy," "Don't get flurried," "Take care." These, the plaintiff candidly admitted, were to act as warnings to him in giving his evidence. Sergeant Ballantine then questioned him as to the meaning of the figures, 1, 2, 3, which occurred from time to time in the note-book, and it appeared that these were intended as reminders swearing any question put to him.

The entry "Never mind him," referred to the learned sergeant himself. The success of this thoughtful gentleman—he won the suit and obtained $1,250 damages—may encourage American witnesses to adopt a similar system of notes and checks for use in the box.

As You Sow SO SHALL YOU REAP.
The season for gardening is close upon us and the following hints are useful: Pins need a light, sandy soil. Sow broadcast.
Hoop-skirts should have a top dressing of water material.
Seaweed needs a good deal of irrigation with salt water.
Cook and parlor stoves may be set out in about five weeks.
Umbrellas need a good deal of irrigation before they will open.
Eggs should be sown broadcast in a rich loam, and well harrowed.
Now is the time, also, to plant your hogs, so that you may have baked pig for the fourth of July.

If you have a new house try and raise a light spring overcoat. This, however, needs great care. Few succeed.
Sow mortgages in about your house. A summer cottage covered with mortgages has a very striking effect.

LIGHTING A MATCH—The match-box, the wall and the carpet are the three substances upon which the average woman will consent to light a match, and it should be noticed, as a curious and as yet unexplained fact, that no woman in any circumstances dreams of lighting matches on the under side of a marble mantlepiece. Man, on the other hand, rewards the mantle-piece as the natural complement of the match, and if he happens to be near one, when about to light a match, uniformly scratches it on the under side of the marble. Some men prefer to light matches on the soles of their boots, except, of course, when the soles are in question are damp. The vast majority of male human beings, whether men, boys or advocates of female dress reform, light their matches on their trousers.

inactivity in the market, early in the week, between buyers and sellers, and which restricted transactions to trifling lots, offering no basis for regular quotations, ceased on Tuesday.

Liverpool telegrams quoting a material decline in values there, and the more pacific outlook in European markets, caused holders to offer concessions which brought in buyers, and a large business was done, comparatively speaking, millers taking 15,000 cts. at 35@36 1/2; fair and good 350 tons, mostly at 35 00; this latter, however, was under peculiar circumstances, and march under the influence of buyers, and not afford to pay. This done, the market has again come to a standstill—holders firm and buyers inactive. The market is quiet, and the more back to 32 1/2. At this writing British and the export demand here cannot be expected to revive at current asking rates; but the available, the course of prices will largely depend upon the wants of our millers.
